Keynote Address
Casey Newton

Casey is the founder and editor of Platformer, an independent publication devoted to exploring the intersection of technology and democracy, including the declining trust in government. He is also co-host of Hard Fork, the critically acclaimed New York Times podcast about technology and the future. Casey’s work focuses on the rise of artificial intelligence, providing commentary on the tech industry’s most important developments, and what it all means for human behavior, politics, and the future that is already here.

Join us to explore artificial intelligence and other tech trends, what it means for your government, and how they will shape the future of work redefining how we interact with our colleagues, peers, and the communities we serve.
